

Do You Need a New Kitchen?

Answer the questions below and find out.

Tick YES or NO — then read your result at the bottom.

YES

NO

COOKING SPACE

Do you have enough counter space to comfortably prepare and cook your meals?

Limited counter space makes cooking stressful and slows down your entire routine.

STORAGE

Can you easily find and access your pots, pans, spices and ingredients without searching?

Poor storage means wasted time and a cluttered kitchen that feels chaotic every day.

APPLIANCES

Are all your appliances neatly accommodated without cluttering your counter or floor?

Appliances left on the floor or piled on counters make the kitchen feel cramped and unsafe.

VENTILATION

Does your kitchen ventilate cooking smells and steam properly and quickly?

Poor ventilation fills your home with cooking odours and causes long-term wall and cabinet damage.

LAYOUT & FLOW

Can two people move around your kitchen comfortably without getting in each other's way?

A poor layout makes daily cooking inefficient and turns a shared kitchen into a frustrating space.

OVERALL CONDITION

Are your cabinets, countertops and finishes still in good, clean and presentable condition?

Worn cabinets and damaged surfaces bring down the feel of the entire home, not just the kitchen.

YOUR RESULT

- All YES — You're in good shape — but a new kitchen always adds value. Change is always a good thing.
- 1 – 2 x NO — You're getting by, but you can definitely do better. A few smart upgrades will transform your daily routine.
- More than 2 x NO — It's definitely time for a new kitchen. Your space deserves a proper redesign.
